

Results of the z39.50 Stress Test

In December 2009, LSCM staff in coordination with volunteers in five FDLP libraries conducted a stress test on LSCM's Aleph production server primarily to test what impact if any the 10,000 record limit in z39.50 has on internal staff's workflow and on the public using the CGP, on success and speed of transactions and continued connectivity.

A summary of the test and the test report are available here.
